Special Educational Needs & Disability

Reviewed by: Suzie Hoefkens Reviewed: September 2021

Rationale, Definitions & Principles

This policy meets the statutory requirements of the 1996 Education Act and is reviewed and redrafted annually in the context of the Special Educational Needs & Disability Code of Practice (2015) Children & Families Act (2014) and Equality Act (2010). Every pupil with SEN and disability (SEND) in this inclusive school has an entitlement to fulfil his/her potential. The Special Needs Coordinator (SENDCO) is Suzie Hoefkens (Deputy Headteacher).

'A child or young person has SEN if they have a learning difficulty or disability which calls for special educational provision to be made for him or her.' (SEND Code of Practice, 2015).

Children have a learning difficulty if they:

- have a significantly greater difficulty in learning than the majority of children of the same age
- have a disability which prevents or hinders them from making use of educational facilities of a kind generally provided for children of the same age in schools within the area of the local authority

Children should not be regarded as having a learning difficulty solely because the language or medium of communication in the home is different from the language in which they will be taught (Education Act 1996, Section 312).

This policy is based on the key principles which underpin the Code of Practice 2015

- All pupils have the right to a broad, balanced and relevant education
- The recognition of a continuum of need
- Early intervention
- Responsibility for SEND lies collectively with all staff
- The use of best practice can minimise the impact of SEND
- Parents as partners in decision-making and their child's education
- Integration of and collaboration between all agencies involved with the pupil
- Successful preparation for adulthood

Please note that 'parents' is used throughout this policy to denote parents and/or carers.

Aims and Objectives

We believe that every child is an individual with differing and particular needs and we aim to create a learning environment which enables all children to access the curriculum, so they can learn, play and progress at their own pace with adults providing sensitive support and interventions.

We aim to create an ethos in our school which is warm and welcoming to all children and their families, regardless of culture, language, religion or special needs, so long as the particular needs can be met within the school. (Please refer to our Teaching and Learning Policy)

We know that identifying children who may have special educational needs is a sensitive and complex process, particularly in the early years. For most children coming into nursery school it is their first experience of life away from home; we recognise that for some children this may be particularly challenging and it may take time to manage the transition. Unless we have major concerns about a child or there is a very clear need for an additional plan of support, we aim to give children time to settle and adjust into nursery – generally around half a term – before we escalate our interventions. (Please refer to Settling in Policy)

We know that children will progress at different rates during the Foundation Stage. Children making slower progress may include those who are learning English as an additional language or who have particular learning difficulties. It should not be assumed that children who are making slower progress have special educational needs, but they will need carefully differentiated learning opportunities to help them progress and regular and frequent careful monitoring.

We recognise that some children need support which is additional to and different from that of their peer group to fully access the curriculum. We aim to support these children with appropriate resources and interventions to ensure that they have full and free access to the same broad, balanced curriculum as all children, in the context of the nursery setting.

Where we have concerns about a child's development and progress we work collaboratively with parents from the outset, sharing concerns, discussing strategies, planning and reviewing. This team approach means that staff, parents and outside support agencies work together for the best outcomes for the child.

We aim to work with sensitivity and care, respecting issues of confidentiality.

Admission and Inclusion

We are committed to the philosophy of inclusion as set out in the Code of Practice. The special educational needs of children will normally be met in the mainstream setting.

We will ensure that there are equal opportunities for all pupils including those with learning, communication, behavioural, emotional, sensory and physical needs. We do this by providing suitable physical access arrangements such as a ramp and a disabled toilet and changing area (further arrangements can be found in our Accessibility Plan). We provide support for emotional well-being through following the Personal, Social and Emotional curriculum guidance of the Early Years Foundation Stage. We also engage with the children through circle time and we monitor their well-being and involvement levels using the Leuven Scales. We give pupils a voice regarding their SEND provision and progress through individual or small group discussion and observation.

We aim to be flexible in our approach to cater for all children's individual needs. (Please refer to our SEND Information Report)

Identification and Provision of Needs

We analyse and use whole-school data to identify pupils with SEND, as well as provision mapping and monitoring children's progress through Individual Support Plans. Staff meet twice daily to discuss children's progress, plan for their interests and discuss any difficulties individual children are having in accessing the nursery curriculum. Individual Support Plans are continually updated, with practitioner knowledge, written observations and photographs used as evidence towards achieving their targets. Plans are reviewed half-termly by the key person, SEND Support Practitioner and parents, with support from the SENDCO.

We make transition arrangements with primary schools to ensure early intervention and continuity for pupils identified as having special educational needs; these include transition meetings attended by parents and other agencies as appropriate; and transition visits, over and above those for the majority of children, with children accompanied by their current SEND Support Practitioner. We have good links with St John's Special School.

Role of staff

It is the responsibility of the class teacher/key person to oversee the particular needs of each child within their class group. The class teacher/key person has responsibility for liaising with others – parents, colleagues, Special Educational Needs Co-ordinator (SENDCO).

Staff working most directly with a child have responsibility for making initial assessments about their particular needs. The assessments will take the form of observations, both formal and informal, undertaken within the nursery to identify specific issues and concerns, and information from other sources such as health visitors or past records (accessed with parents' consent and knowledge). If, after a period of high-quality personalised teaching a child's development continues to be of concern the child's teacher/key person will make a referral for SENDCO involvement.

Staff working most directly with the child will work under the guidance of the class teacher to gather information, including through observations, and to keep records of the child's work and development. Where appropriate the class teacher/key person, under the guidance of the SENDCO and in consultation with parents will write an Individual Support Plan. The SENDCO will use the child's records, assessments and Support Plans to complete requests for statutory assessment using the criteria set out in the local authority guidance.

Staff will support children through a range of strategies and interventions generally in the main nursery provision alongside other children. When appropriate, children may take part in more individual or small-group work in a quieter, distraction-free room. Staff will undertake training and individual research to keep themselves informed of practice and thinking, supported by the SENDCO.

The Role of the SENDCO

The SENDCO is responsible for:

• Co-ordinating the SEND provision as laid out in this policy and in the framework of the Code of Practice.

- Ensuring liaison with parents and other professionals in respect of children with SEND.
- Advising and supporting practitioners in the setting.
- Ensuring that appropriate Support Plans are in place.
- Ensuring that relevant information about children is collected, recorded and updated.
- Contributing to the in-service training of staff and working with external agencies including the Early Years Support Team and other support agencies.
- Supporting the application for statutory assessment as and when appropriate.
- Undertaking reading, personal research and training to keep informed about relevant and current research, thinking and practice.

The Role of the Governing Body

The Governing Body will appoint a nominated governor to oversee the school's approach to provision for children with special needs. In conjunction with the Head Teacher and the SENDCO they will monitor the arrangements of funding for appropriate staffing, resources and training. The governor responsible for Special Educational Needs provision is Rebecca Lund. Governors will also ensure that the annual report to parents includes an update on the success of the school's SEND Policy and any significant changes to this policy, as well as any consultations with the LA or other Governing Bodies involved in co-ordination of provision and the allocation of resources to and among special needs children in the school since the last report.

The day to day responsibility for overseeing the operation of this policy will be the SENDCO Suzie Hoefkens and the Governors.

The Role of the Headteacher

The Headteacher will have responsibility for the day-to-day management of all aspects of the school including special needs provision. It is her job to keep the Governing Body fully informed and to work closely with the SENDCO.

Monitoring and Assessment

A graduated response will be used to support children with SEND.

The Code of Practice guidance for monitoring and assessing children is used to provide support and interventions.

When an early education practitioner who works day-to-day with the child, or the SENDCO, identifies a child with special educational needs, they should devise interventions that are additional to or different from those provided as part of the setting's usual curriculum offer and strategies (School Support).

The triggers for intervention through School Support could be the practitioner's or parent's concern about a child who despite receiving appropriate early education experiences:

- Makes little or no progress even when teaching approaches are particularly targeted to improve the child's identified area of weakness.
- Continues working at levels significantly below those expected for children of a similar age in certain areas.

- Presents persistent emotional and /or behavioural difficulties, which are not ameliorated by the behaviour management techniques usually employed in the setting.
- Has sensory or physical problems, and continues to make little or no progress despite the provision of personal aids and equipment.
- Has communication and/or interaction difficulties, and requires specific individual interventions in order to access learning.

There are some children who may be experiencing short term, transient difficulties due to specific issues, i.e. returning from long-term absence, being unsettled due to family issues, etc. In these circumstances we would put in a short-term intervention but would not necessarily deem that child to have special educational needs.

Strategies used to help children make progress may be recorded on Individual Support Plans, which include clear information about short-term goals for the child, teaching strategies and the provision to be made.

Support Plans are working documents and are reviewed as an ongoing process, but are formally reviewed at least half-termly. Parents will have direct involvement in the review process, with opportunities to share their views and to contribute towards their child's new targets. Support Plans are shared with all adults involved in the child's life in school including support staff, lunchtime supervisors as well as parents.

If a child does not make any measurable progress and outside agencies become involved, the SENDCO takes a leading role in reviewing the targets in conjunction with teachers, support staff, external agencies and parents.

In some cases the support given to a child through School Support may not be enough and it may be necessary for an Education, Health and Care Needs Assessment to be requested from the Local Authority, to ensure that additional and appropriate support for the child can continue to be accessed when they start formal schooling. The request for an Education Health and Care Needs Assessment will be made by the school in partnership with parents and in consultation with other professionals involved in the child's education and welfare. Once this assessment takes place the Local Authority may agree to draw up an Education Health and Care Plan (EHCP). This will then form the basis for the child's subsequent Support Plans.

The EHCP will be reviewed with all relevant professionals at least every six months for children under five years of age, or more often if requested by parents. The review process will identify the continuing need for an EHCP and recommend any necessary amendments to the plan.

Policy review

All teaching and non-teaching staff will be involved in the development and review of this policy and must make themselves familiar with all procedures for identifying, assessing, monitoring and making provision for children with special needs, especially special educational needs. This policy will be reviewed and monitored annually by the Governing Body and School Staff.
